hereby declares that our products listed below do not fall in the scope of UK's "Product Security and Telecommunications Infrastructure Act 2022".

Products:

- Embedded controls (Standard and Safety related)
- I/O modules (Standard and Safety related)
- IPC devices
- HMI devices

As manufacturer of products for automation solutions such as electric controls, drives, motors as well as software solutions and app technology, we focus on the business-to-business (B2B) transactions exclusively. Our products primarily intend to be used in manufacturing, building automation or other industrial applications.

B2B takes place between one business and another, whereas B2C stands for business-to-consumer that takes place between a business and an individual as the end customer.

PSTI

The focus of PSTI is clearly B2C business.

Chapter 2, point 8 of the act defines that "a manufacturer of a relevant connectable product must comply with any relevant security requirements" if the manufacturer "intends the products to be a UK consumer connectable product". In chapter 4, point 54 of the act the meaning of "UK consumer connectable product" is given.

The guidance "The UK Product Security and Telecommunications Infrastructure (Product Security) regime" from UK's Department for Science, Innovation and Technology lists some related documents to help understanding PSTI. Among them is „CYBER; Cyber Security for Consumer Internet of Things: Baseline Requirements“ (ETSI EN 303 645 V2.1.1 (2020-06)).

Point 1 "Scope" states: "Devices that are not consumer IoT devices, for example those that are primarily intended to be used in manufacturing, healthcare or other industrial applications, are not in scope of the present document."
